

Why these questions are important?

I like tiny humans

The 3 Question Approach to Training in Paediatrics Abroad!!!

Introduction

A key thing to do before making any decisions on Paediatrics is to look at what stage you are in your career and answer 3 questions below. The answers will differ based on whether you have started your training in Paediatrics or have joined and or have completed your training in Paediatrics in your home country.

Part 1 I have completed my undergraduate training in my home country and am looking to start a career in Paediatrics

- 1) Should I do Paediatric Training in my country of origin prior to seeking training broad to further my paediatric experience
- 2) Where is the best place to do my paediatric training overseas if I don't want to do Paediatrics in my Home country?
- 3) Where do I see myself at the end of completing my journey in Paediatric training and what is Plan B?

Part 2 I am currently pursuing Paediatrics in my home country and am looking to train overseas in Paediatrics

- 1) Where is the best place to do my Paediatric training abroad?
- 2) What are the pros and cons of working in the UK vs USA vs Australia vs Canada
- 3) Where do I see myself at the end of completing my journey in Paediatric training and what is Plan B?

Part 3 I have finished my PG training and super specialisation in my home country

- 1) Where is the best place to do my training abroad?
- 2) What kind of Paediatric training experience am I trying to get?
- 3) Where do I see myself at the end of completing my journey in Paediatric training and what is Plan B?